REMOTE LEARNING

Dear Parents / Carers,

With the ongoing school closures and disrupted learning occurring across the country the staff at Walworth have been completing training on a new platform to help keep our children learning in this difficult time.

Purple Mash is a learning platform that is used by school across the country with great success. With this platform children are assigned work by their class teachers which can be completed and returned to be marked and gain feedback.

To access Purple Mash the children, have a login, which is enclosed along with Parent help sheets. If your child has been in school then staff have also shown them how to use it. Purple Mash works on any device that has a web browser (Intern Explorer, Google Chrome, Safari etc) so hopefully you are able to support your child in gaining access.

The web address on the login sheet is one way to access Purple Mash, however the school websites Remote Learning Page (link below) also has links to our Learning Platforms. This page is regularly updated with other activities that can be done at home as well so it is worth checking. The sheets you have in this envelope are on the site if you misplace them.

As with everything in these times we appreciate the difficulty of juggling lots of things at home, but hope you can support us and your child in keeping their education going while school is disrupted.

If you are having issues then please contact school through the usual channels and we will do everything to help.

Finally, thank you for your continued support and understanding in these difficult times.

Regards

Mr Wallbanks
